Let me say at once that I shall treat my subject frankly from the manual training standpoint. As seen from this point of view, I shall state anew the purposes of giving instruction in drawing and the purposes of giving instruction in manual training, selecting those more commonly given by interested advocates of these two branches of school work to-day. What I have to say is very simple and has often been said before; but it sometimes happens that old truths stated in a new way, and especially old truths placed in new relations, assume new significance and have a new value. It is my hope that we may come to some clearer understanding of the relation between drawing and manual training by comparing the various purposes for which they are said to be taught. The purposes of giving instruction in drawing in, let us say, our public schools, are, as I have gleaned them from various sources, as follows: - 1. To develop the habit...
