ANGLICAN SANCTIFICATION: THE WORK WE WERE GIVEN TO DO

Createspace, United States, 2011. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 203 x 127 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .As both a psychologist and an Anglican Priest, I ask myself questions: What constitutes the attributes of a Christian? How are Christians different than those who are not Christians? Are new Christians different from older Christians? Is there some kind of emotional patina evident to others as Christians age? From the perspective of science, does Christianity offer a method or treatment with observable outcomes? Does regular church attendance, Scripture reading and service to others make a difference? Do we become what we practice? Is there a change of personality sometimes referred to as conversion of manners? Is what we call the fruits of the Spirit evident in Christian lives? Do Christians respond differently to the events in their world? Are they more resilient than others? My answer to all of these questions is, Yes. We cannot depend on our culture to be the good soil for the growth of the Kingdom of God nor should we. I believe it is our Lord's charge to His church to feed His sheep and equip His saints for service. We must not allow ourselves to be co-opted by the culture. As a church, we may not allow our work, the work Christ gave us to do, to be outsourced to our governments. We must do what we have traditionally done and that is to prepare our sheep in this life as citizens for God's Kingdom now and in eternity. Ultimately, the difference in a culture is made by any Christian who listens to God and is willing to take on the unique assignment that God offers. It is a spiritual niche that will give purpose and meaning to the...
